Remarks :

It was a privilege to take a course under Karthik sir. The conceptual clarity gained through the course made me very confident in Probability Theory. The enthusiasm is infectious. The slides were extremely detailed and yet easy to understand; breaking down complex topics in a really intuitive way, even if I could not listen to some of the lectures. Instructor is very humble and approachable. The suggestions I have - it is sometimes very hard to focus for 2 hour classes, it would be easier if morning slots were picked and 3-4 classes of shorter duration were taken a week rather than two classes of long duration. Also, Markov Chains could have been started a bit earlier (a lot more time was spent on foundations than required; in hindsight - perhaps due to the conceptual clarity I gained - I felt convergence, WLLN, SLLN, MCT, DCT could have been finished in less than 1 month) so as to give us more time to go into the title of the course.

Remarks :

The professor has done more than what is called for in this course, but I feel like this course is a lot more detailed and hence it should be more than a three-credit course. Taking approximately four hour classes weekly is not sufficient to complete the Poisson processes and complete martingales in a rigorous manner (as done with Markov chains). Therefore I request the professor, who has already done an excellent job, consider splitting the course contents into parts, another course being Advanced Stochastic Processes-2 (which only covers Poisson processes and martingales).

Sir (who is, as usual, extraordinary) kept his promise in making the course very exciting for the students who have taken his previous course in random variables and probability theory. He has covered every topic in great detail and in a fabulous manner.

The prof teaches really well, but would like it better if he took 1.5 hour classes instead of 2 or 2 hour 15 minute classes.

Remarks :

Thank you sir, for your patience and gracefulness. I felt picking up the essence of things slowly. Nevertheless a much needed course for hammering my thought processes to think along the right direction. I will surely study again after the semester ends, till my aptitude for Random Variables and Stochastic Processes feels satisfactory.
